

FY 2004 1st Quarterly Financial Report of the United States Mint Commemorative Coin Programs

*1st Quarter reporting period
October 1, 2003 through December 31, 2003*

PROGRAM-WIDE SUMMARY

Modern commemorative coins authorized by Congress and produced by the United States Mint date from the introduction of the George Washington 250th Anniversary Half Dollar in 1982. Congress authorized a total of 41 commemorative coin programs between 1982 and 2003, honoring people, places, events, and institutions of significance in American history and culture. Surcharges from the sales of these coins help fund a variety of organizations and projects that benefit the Nation at large. United States Mint commemorative coin programs have collected approximately $429.7 million in surcharges over the past 21 years for many worthy recipient organizations.

The Commemorative Coin Reform Act of 1996 (CCRA), as amended by Title II of Public Law 108-15 (April 23, 2003), requires commemorative coin programs to link public funding of special projects to private support. Recipient organizations are required to show receipts of donations from private sources “in an amount that is equal to or greater than the total amount of the proceeds of such surcharge derived from the sale of such numismatic items.” The CCRA ensures that the United States Mint recovers the costs of operating such coin programs.

Commemorative coins are beneficial, not only to numismatic enthusiasts and the recipient organizations, but also because they reaffirm the history of our Nation. To ensure that commemorative coin programs reap the benefits of the reforms of 1996, the United States Mint must continue to execute and oversee these coin programs in a conscientious, prudent and business-like manner.

This bicentennial program will feature a coin and currency set and a limited-edition set that includes a handmade Native American pouch.

MARKET-BASED RESEARCH FOR ALL COMMEMORATIVE COIN PROGRAMS

As part of our overall marketing research program, during the third quarter of calendar year 2003, focus groups were conducted with active United States Mint customers to provide input regarding 2003 and 2004 commemorative coin programs. Information collected in this research helps the United States Mint to gauge the level of customer appeal for current and future commemorative coin issues.

EFFORTS OF THE UNITED STATES MINT IN KEEPING THE SALE PRICE OF COMMEMORATIVE NUMISMATIC ITEMS AS LOW AS PRACTICABLE

Commemorative coin pricing entails estimating consumer demand and costs associated with producing and selling the item. The United States Mint also continually strives to achieve the greatest efficiencies in the production of commemorative coins to keep the prices as low as practicable. As an additional cost cutting effort, the United States Mint now produces graphic arts and promotional materials in-house.

CONCLUSION

As of December 31, 2003, no legislation has been enacted for any future commemorative coin programs.
